Howdy!

Welcome back to Texas A&M. I hope that your break was restful and that it helped to prepare you for a great spring semester. If the fall events and activities were any indication of what lies ahead, then we are in store for a real treat. I was quite impressed by the programs that were offered by our student organizations last semester and the quality of leadership that you possess. The contributions that you made to this campus and the surrounding communities were significant. I encourage you to build on your successes and find new and creative ways to serve others. I challenge you to think differently as you plan your programs and to take risks. Go beyond your comfort zones, challenge yourselves, and do something that you haven't done before. I guarantee you that the rewards will be monumental.

Whether you are developing a budget, planning an event, or training new members, please consider calling upon us for assistance. The Department of Student Activities has a wealth of knowledge and expertise that could be beneficial to your organization. Please consider dropping by our office in 125 Koldus during business hours, 8:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, or attending one of our many workshops, seminars, or informational sessions. We would love to help. If you have not already done so, please check out our website: <http://studentactivities.tamu.edu/>. I look forward to seeing you around campus.

Sincerely,

Dr. William B. Stackman
Director, Department of Student Activities

Leading With Your Strengths

Target Audience: Texas A&M Students - Registration required
This seminar is for students interested in learning more about their natural strengths in order to become more effective leaders. Students take the Clifton StrengthsFinder inventory to learn their five strongest talents. Knowledge of these talents will allow students to learn how best to lead themselves in order to lead others. The seminar will be interactive, energetic, useful, and resource-based. For more information, call 845-4878.

Thursday, February 7, 4:00 - 7:00 p.m. (Koldus 144)

The LeaderShape Institute

Target Audience: Texas A&M Students - Registration required
This institute is an energizing, intensive six-day program that teaches key leadership issues and will be held at Pineywoods Camp in Groveton, TX. Interested students can apply independently beginning in February, and students can also be nominated by academic departments or departments within the Division of Student Affairs. For more information, please visit <http://studentactivities.tamu.edu/leadandserve/programs/leadershape> or email sedwards@stuact.tamu.edu.

Monday, May 12 - Saturday, May 17 (Pineywoods Camp)

Margaret Rudder Service Award

The Margaret Rudder Community Service Award recognizes and awards those who significantly impact their community and, as a result, are themselves impacted by that contribution. This award is designed to inspire student volunteerism on a continual basis and encourage the utilization of various service organizations and the Leadership and Service Center. Students can apply on their own, or members of the Texas A&M University community may nominate a student deserving of the award. For more information, visit <http://studentactivities.tamu.edu/leadandserve/programs/mrcsa> or call 862-1491.

February 1: applications and nominations available online

February 28: nominations due online by 5:00 p.m.

March 7: applications due online by 5:00 p.m.

April 13: award presented at All-University Awards Ceremony

The "Ultimate" Series

Target Audience: Student organization leaders and Advisors
The Risk Management & Organizational Development Services Team is restructuring the "Ultimate" workshop series! These voluntary workshops provide information about "hot topics" for organizations looking to further their group development. Some workshops may look familiar, while others cover new topics, but ALL have been re-designed to better meet the needs of student organizations.

Look for Department of Student Activities' announcements about the workshops offered this Spring! Stop by Koldus 125, email risk@stuact.tamu.edu, or call 458.4371 with questions or concerns. More information is below!

Building an Organization from Scratch

This workshop is designed for student leaders and advisors starting a brand new organization. We'll complement the knowledge you gain from the Organizational Development Seminar with specific advice for those starting from scratch!

Fundraising

This workshop covers the basics of raising money for your organization or for other groups/causes. We'll review university rules and policies for fundraising and provide lots of resources for good event planning.

Travel

This workshop will walk you through effective risk management for any travel activities you may be doing with your members, from road trips to international flights. You'll get an overview of all university and departmental rules & policies for student travel, and you'll be provided with tons of resources for planning effective trips.

Motivation

This workshop will focus on understanding motivation for student organization members and the application of various motivational techniques. We'll talk about group dynamics and member involvement and practice various skills to motivate members.

Building Effective Leadership

This workshop is designed for student leaders and advisors who want to learn more about developing their executive members into a strong leadership team! We'll discuss such topics as effective officer selection processes, establishing successful transitions for new officers, strong teambuilding activities, and assessing your leadership development initiatives.

Communication

In this seminar, we'll go over basic principles of healthy group communication and conflict resolution skills. We'll also go into great detail about personal communication styles, doing some activities that help us to understand our own communication styles and how to utilize that knowledge in working with others in the organization.
